Back to reality for Barack

Election euphoria over; stocks slump anew

LONDON—MARKET EUphoria over Barack Obama's historic election as America's first black president quickly dissipated on Thursday as more jobs vanished and stock markets slumped in the face of the world's relentless economic crisis.

After a shaky rise on election day, markets in the United States, Asia and Europe tumbled as investors shifted their focus on grim economic data—bigger-than-expected US job losses, sharp contraction in the world's services sector, steep declines in house prices and a manufacturing retreat in Britain.

A series of dim-profits warnings from major Asian companies such as Japan's Toyota Motor Corp. and India's Maruti
Ltd., and Hong Kong carrier Cathay Pacific Airways Ltd. also pushed markets back to the reality of depressed economic conditions.

"We're coming back to reality... despite the euphoria over the election, the world's economy hasn't changed," said Francis Lee, general manager of Fubright Securities in Hong Kong.

Japan's Nikkei stock average rebounded 0.5 percent, Hong Kong's Hang

Obama starts building his team for the White House

WASHINGTON—PRESIDENT-ELECT

Barack Obama has begun moving to build his administration and make good on his ambitious promises to put the United States in a different direction, as his commanding victory redefined the American political landscape and reshaped much of the nation.

A day after becoming the first African-American to capture the presidency, Obama announced a transition team and prepared to name an ally as his White House chief of staff in his first steps toward securing power.

President George W. Bush moved to work closely with Obama to ensure a smooth transition.

Rep. Rahm Emanuel of Illinois, the fourth-ranking House Democrat and a close friend of Obama's from Chicago, has been offered the job of White House chief of staff, and although he was said to be concerned about the effects on his family and giving up his industrial role as Capital Hill, many Democrats said they expected him to accept it.

Obama named John D. Podesta, the former Clinton White House chief of staff, to lead his transition team along with Valerie Jarrett, a longtime adviser.

LPG prices still too high—DOE chief

By Christian V. Espuena,
Robert Garayza and Angel L. Ho

PRICES OF LIQUEFIED PETROLEUM gas in the country are still too high despite the price cuts made by oil firms and dealers, according to Energy Secretary Angelo Reyes.

Reyes noted that the LPG contract price in the world market had been reduced by 39 percent, which should lead to a decrease of P15 to P17 per kilogram in local products this month.

But so far, he said oil firms had reduced their prices by only P4 per kilogram, or P44 per 11-kg cylinder.

Reyes' computation, the oil firms and dealers still need consumer's rebate of at least P51 per kilogram, or between P55 and P65 per cylinder.

Asean moves closer to 'open skies'

10 nations ink pacts removing air restrictions starting end of the year

By Rita E. Ochoaury

THE ASSOCIATION OF SOUTHEAST ASIAN NATIONS HAS moved closer to creating a single aviation market as Asean transport ministers signed several agreements yesterday to remove restrictions on air and air freight services and allow regional airlines to fly to any of the capitals of the 10 member countries.

Under the agreement, unlimited FDI freedom rights, allowing member countries the right to fully own other's capital cities, will be in place by 2018. By 2025, all of ASEAN will be a unified economic market.

The deal, which most imports to the Philippines is the multilateral agreement on air services which will allow airlines like Cebu Pacific Air and Philippine Airlines to expand their operations in Asian capital cities without having to seek additional contributions from the host country.

Philippines' annual tourist income, with each tourist spending an average of between $200 and $400.

This would give workers better pay and the economy is stable in the face of the global financial crisis, I said.

The Philippines received 3 million tourists in 2007, according to Department of Tourism officials.

The multilateral agreements on air services and the full liberalization of air freight services are part of plans drawn up by Asean to foster economic cooperation and growth.

Comelec casts envious eye on conduct of US elections

THE COMMISSION on Elections, taking stock of the recently concluded elections in the United States, admitted yesterday that automated voting in the Philippines would not be problem-free.

Comelc Chair Jose Melo said in one approach to how the US manages conduct of the elections and the efficiency of the voting process, where different voting machines were used.

Melo said the conduct of the US election was a great opportunity for learning how various voting machines worked and the technical problems in the process.

The Commission is preparing for automated elections because it would not enter large-scale voting machines.

But Melo noted that US voters still had some complaints and that the problems in the US might be replicated and multiplied in the Philippines.

He cited the "bush vote" in Florida, where some voters were not used to the machine. There were also complaints that some machines caused voter chaos.

Longer lines

"They have more money and more machines, but the lines were still long," he said. "That is our country's election law or machine, so the lines will probably be longer."

He also said the challenges would be longer in the Philippines because of the diverse nature of conditions and the many election problems at stake.

He said the Commission was conducting a study early on to make the lines in the Philippines shorter.

"We are looking at early voting, but that would take a lot of money," he said.

If an automated vote is possible, Melo said, the Commission could "collapse" the process and clear the lines in big, big polling places.

Focus on issues

Melo also said that such law that has been in place for 20 years is not perfect. The 2001 law is not perfect, he said, but he hoped that the Commission would not be able to take care of the law. He said the Commission would not be able to take care of the law.

"On the behavior of the candidates, they talked about process and not process. Melo said that the Commission would not be able to take care of the law.

He said it was in looking to have a campaign where there were greater discussion on the problems and issues facing the country.

He launched his tendency of public law to create "citizenship" and to take the leaders of their election campaign, instead of their platform.

He said that he hoped that in 2010, candidates would no longer be "just the campaign on a higher level." (Inquirer) Alar

LPG prices still too high—DOE chief

By Arjo Ayon

The price adjustments implemented on Tuesday brought the price of an 11.45-gallon LPG cylinder to between P244 and P262.50.

"The drop in the LPG cylinder price is very big," Reyes said.

"We will make sure that there are no unreasonable profits. We will have to ensure that consumers, households are getting the right value for their money" he told reporters shortly before accompanying Petron Philippines Inc. (PPI) chairman and CEO, Francisco Macapagal-Arroyo in his inauguration ceremony. PPI's last addition blending plant at the Subic Bay Refinery is now operating.

Petron built the facility in partnership with Enxergy, a leading global fuel additive supplier.

For export

The facility, which has the capacity to blend 12,000 metric tons of fuel additives a year, will export about 80 percent of its production to the Asia-Pacific region.

Petron will use the production facilities to blend products.

Macapagal said that with additives now cheaper and more affordable than other fuel products and stimuli help consumers were needed.

"The demand for fuel additives in other Asian countries is projected to remain high," he said.

Easier to predict

Earlier this week, Reyes said it was much easier to predict price adjustments in LPG products because contract prices were fixed any, in a month. Unlike pump prices of gas, which are dependent both on world oil prices and foreign exchange rates.

"If fuel LPG prices would prove to be not indicative of international contract prices, the Department of Energy would go after those who do it," he said.

Demands for lower LPG prices reflected with calls for more reduction in pump prices of gas, diesel, and kerosene, all because of the continuous decline in world oil prices.

Oil firms last week cut gasoline prices by P2-P2.50 a liter, because by P2 a liter and diesel by P2-P4 a liter—the biggest ever pump price reduction in the country.

Fuel will overpriced

The national Bureau of Economic Analysis said the price of diesel would go down by another P4 a liter.

Based on the group's comparison, diesel was still overpriced by P8.02 a liter, kerosene by P2.09 a liter and gasoline products by P6.05 a liter.

"This means that the oil firms still owe consumers more and bigger reductions this month. We demand that they implement a single big cutback by the end of the month and not through installment as what they did in October and to the past months," Reyes secretary general Ramon Reyes Jr. said in a statement.

He noted that global prices continued to decline. "The main they delay corresponding reductions in local pump prices, the more consumers are exploited through exorbitant prices," he added.

Dollar price, exchange rate

He said Bureau comparisons took into account fixed crude prices and limited exchange rates from Oct. 1 to 26—the latest available data at the time of the study.

In an earlier interview, Francisco Macapagal, Eastern Petroleum Corp. chief, said the decrease in international prices for October had already been reflected in the pump.

"We have no outlook yet for November. We can't really tell anymore because prices will go up and we're here," he said.

Data from the Department of Energy shows that the regional benchmark (Gulf Coast) benchmark for refined petroleum products plunged to a low of $1.4 a barrel in October, down from $1.8 a barrel last month.

Macapagal said that the drop in the average price of $1.4 a barrel to the low last week of November, from the October average price of $1.8 a barrel.

The international average price of $1.8 a barrel.

The international average price of $1.8 a barrel.

to only $1.40 per metric ton (MT) this month, from $1.84 per MT in October.

Fare reduction

Responding to calls in fuel prices, the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB) said reduced the minimum journey fare nationwide by 50 percent.

But fare was reduced by P0.20 to P1 for the first five kilometers.

The LTFRB division was met with mixed reactions, including those of consumer groups who felt that transport fare should have been decreased more.

Transportation Secretary Eddiño Macapagal said the LTFRB would determine "in due time" if an adjustment in the P10 add-on in fuel fare would be in order.

HOW CAN SHE stay so calm when she knows that she will soon be in the hands of the Abu Sayyaf group?

Each night getting to sleep must be a very hard task for the young woman who is now in the hands of the Abu Sayyaf group.

TOURISTS continue to flock to the white sand beaches of Boracay after it was declared the Department of Tourism's diving site of the year, with an average of 9,361 visitors per day.

Thugs seize Aussie-owned Boracay resort

"It's something for my wife, Vivian, and 8-year-old twins," Hutchinson said. Hutchinson, who helped build Boracay into a world-renowned beach resort, said he has been the victim of an organized campaign to take him out of Boracay.

"When we opened SandCandy in 1990 there were just 10,000 tourists here, now there are over 100," a source Hutchinson told Agency France-Press.

"This type of intimidation has been going on for some years. We thought it had stopped," he said. "This is the way things are done in the Philippines."

"There are certain elements in the country who want you to develop something, take a portion of it and then they come in and force you out so they can stop the growth."

The source spoke at once Hutchinson's 50-year-old son, who will be 15 years old next year. Arnold Anderson, Boracay police chief, told AFP he had offered Hutchinson and his family safe passage out of the resort but they refused to leave and were waiting for their lawyers.

"It is a civil dispute," Anderson said, denying there were any armed thugs in the premises.

"Thugs and security guards had been at the resort all night," he said.

Commenting on the incident, Anderson said the security guards were sent by the police to protect property owners. He said he had been told by the police that Hutchinson was a security guard in the 20 years since 2000.

Mores, according to Anderson, had not signed the contract after Hutchinson refused a part of the property. She also reportedly claimed that Hutchinson was attempting to sell the property without her knowledge. Reports from AFP and Voice of Boracay, a local newspaper.

What would I do to protect my daughter from cervical cancer?

Everything I can

In the Philippines, according to the 2005 Philippine Cancer Facts and Figures published by the Philippine Cancer Society Inc., cervical cancer was the second leading cause of cancer death in women in 2004. In 2005, 7,277 new cases and 3,867 deaths due to cervical cancer were estimated to have occurred. This means that there were approximately 10 Filipino women deaths each day due to cervical cancer.

Did you know that there are several ways to help prevent cervical cancer and other diseases caused by HPV? There are things you can do now to help protect your daughter's future.

SPEEDING ON HIGHWAY

13 hurt in new bus accident on Edsa

By Beverly T. Natidul

ANOTHER SPEEDING BUS WAS INVOLVED IN an accident on Edsa in Marikina City yesterday morning.

Though there was no fatality, 13 men—were wounded in the collision between an IBM bus with plate number TYK 375 and a JACB bus with plate T24 354. The accident occurred at the intersection of the Marikina Road and the Edsa Road. The IBM bus driver, Fernando Lopez, 41, was speeding on the northbound lane of Edsa near 5th Marikina when it hit the rear end of the JACB bus driven by Joey de Guzman, 37. Conditions on the highway were particularly hazardous this morning because it was raining, investigators added. The Marikina Traffic Office said Lopez could be charged with reckless imprudence resulting in damage to property plus multiple physical injuries.

But the 13 passengers did not file any complaint with the road-tying to do with the bus companies, investigators said.

On Nov. 21, a driver died and three people were injured when two buses racing against each other hit a car resulting in its driver and passengers. Authorities suspended the franchise of the license for the bus for 30 days.

Just the other day, a Michael Albert bus hit a Metro Rail Transit bus and then slammed into another bus, also on Edsa, leaving 15 passengers injured.

Sunflower Main Concern: Consumer Well-being

Officials of Croley Foods, maker of Sunflower, express its thanks to the Department of Health and the Bureau of Food and Drugs for speeding up the review and immediately announcing the results to the public in the shortest possible time.

With the official findings that all of the Sunflower with many variants is safe to eat, Croley reaffirmed that its principal concern is selling the product in the well-being and health of the public. As in the past 31 years, Croley has and will continue in its commitment to provide tasty, quality products in the country and abroad.

The resumption of the operation of the company is greatly welcomed by hundreds of their workers and employees and their families whose economic interest was adversely affected. The product which is widely accepted abroad can generate timely export earnings for the country, especially during recent economic downturn.

The principals of the company who are Christians cited the wisdom, strength and grace that were granted to enable them to overcome and to continue to pursue the goal of producing high quality products.

The company acknowledged the support and cooperation of all sectors, including national government entities, the media, its distributors and the national public.

THE TEAMS: UP CLOSE AND PERSONAL

They come from different provinces and from different walks of life, but only one team will take the lead and conquer the more challenging and more exciting "Ready, Set, RORO!" DBP Interisland Race-Year 3.

Each team is composed of three members: two participants and one celebrity.

TEAM NARRA: Will Nolasco, 38, and friend "Super" Perez, 38, with celebrity Ryan Garcia, 18. Will and Super are CEOs from Manila who've always wanted to join island races.

TEAM TAGBIRAN: Tina and Tina are siblings from Manila who, when they win the grand prize, will use it to invest in business.

TEAM ANAKAN: Chad Venancio, 21, and Roseanne "Rory" Barmas, 20, with celebrity donate some of the money to a cancer foundation if they win.

TEAM ASLA: David and David are students from Cebu who are also first-time race goers. They said that joining the race gives them a sense of "self-education."

THE CHALLENGE

Starting today, November 7, until November 12, 2008, these ten teams will rediscover the adventure in our tourist spots while learning about their country's pride product via the RORO routes.

For six days at least, depending on how long they travel before they get eliminated, these teams will have to work together cooperatively for them to be the first to reach the finish line.

BE PART OF IT!

Who do you think will go home with the P1 Million Grand Prize?

Vote for your favorite team and if your team wins the grand prize, you get a chance to win exciting prizes. To know more about the teams, and to vote, log on to www.dbpinterislandrace.com.ph.

Watch out for the "Ready, Set, RORO!" DBP Interisland Race-Year 3 in your local provincial or cities to see who takes the lead and conquers the finish line!

A BACKGROUNDER: An annual adventure race called "Ready, Set, RORO!" DBP Interisland Race-Year 3

Get to kick off on November 7, 2008, the "Ready, Set, RORO!" DBP Interisland Race-Year 3 gives ten teams the chance to win one million pesos while touring the country's scenic spots in Bohol, Cebu, Leyte, Northern Samar, Masbate, Sorsogon, Zamboanga, Surigao, and Manila.

The team that incurred the lowest score or was last to finish a task after each leg will be eliminated, except on predetermined, non-elimination legs. Only four teams will advance to the finals that will be held in Manila. Each leg will highlight the province's tourist spots and will promote local commerce through its "treasure hunt" for each province's or city's pride products.

The "Ready, Set, RORO!" DBP Interisland Race is an annual adventure race that promotes the Road Roll-on, Roll-off Terminal System (RRTS) as an alternate mode of transportation for both people and goods. Incidentally, the RRIS is under the Development Bank of the Philippines' Sustainable Development Logistics Program (SLDP) that aims to improve local commerce and contribute to the development of various areas within the Philippines.

Careful with that e-mail

WITH THE ADVANCES IN INFORMATION technology, it is very hard to practice for companies to moderate e-mail addresses and put them in their brochures, business cards, and product labels.

The e-mail addresses depend on policies to communicate by company with the company website. In fact, the company also respond to their customer or the customer's e-mail address.

By policy to reduce telephone calls and save cost.

Although a company's e-mail is often used for business, it is also a source of knowledge that employees can use for their personal or social purposes (wherever they have an opportunity).

The social media for the e-mail is a key tool, where employees for the company to find important information of the company.

And when they do, the e-mail is not a secure medium to their e-mail address or e-mail address. The employees should think that only the e-mail of their company will be able to send them.

Community spirit fires up Sagada pottery

By Christine Calala
Asipul Northern Luzon

SAGADA, ILOCOS REGION—THE mud, sand and fire that have produced the best pottery in this mountain region have continued to excite the hearts of artists who uphold this spirit of cooperation, family harmony and ability.

Last month, Lays Pottery, Public Goods II and other pottery and a new kiln in Sagada Maguogogog are in firing season in the pits and lofts.

"This kiln was made in the days," Bonting says. "People ended in 1992, and other kilns had died, and this kiln was made in the days," Bonting says. "People ended in 1992, and other kilns had died, and this kiln was made in the days," Bonting says.

hard clay that when on natural glaze. The flyash, which is the by-product of the burning process, is used as a glaze.

"This new kiln will serve as a workshop area for all pottery, and for those who want to learn pottery," Bonting says. "This is a challenge and obligation for us to teach the new generation to make sure [local] pottery will always be alive."

The national group of pottery, called Potters' Guild, has been formed by the Sagada Pottery Association and organized in order to discuss the local pottery products.

Some members of Potters' Guild Association of the Philippines Inc. are: accomplished potters like Jesus de Gomez, Jose Pineda, Jose Eduardo

A NEW kiln in Sagada is the third example like it in the country.

Porcino, Mariano Lantion and Gagan.

The local pottery business has a rich history in Sagada since its origin in March 1940 when it started the new pottery.

Bonting says part of the kiln from that kiln, built in the Sagada City, was used to buy materials for the construction of the kiln in Hapagagag.

"One of the vision is to preserve the identity of Sagada because of its beautiful natural resources," says Gagan, who comes from Bonting.

Sagada pottery is not just a local industry but a national industry. It is a local industry but a national industry. It is a local industry but a national industry.

phones, the same sleek approach was evident in his women's wear. He also used in fashion off some of his models' seemingly perfect figures with strategic imperfections in the form of asymmetrical and at times exaggerated fabric treatments on the sleeves, back and legs.

"Even though a certain dress' proportions are ideal and slim, it can still use a lot of imperfection like lumpy details to make it look well-balanced and interesting," he said.

Cool,

lightweight

Although Ramon's collection might seem a tad too much to wear in a tropical climate, it was made, he insisted, from relatively cool materials such as cotton, silk, lightweight wool and silk.

"Lightweight wool happens to be my favorite item. It seems like it's only meant for abroad," he said.

Jewel provided the ladies' platform shoes, while Teller provided the men's formal sneakers. He also did a great deal of layering that went beyond the usual shirts over cropped leggings, pants that seemed to be falling off a man's behind only to reveal yet another pair of pants, and an increasingly sorted dress over a Band-Aid stretched material worn by model Bala Bala.

"That dress proved me talented to do," he said, referring to the coated and knitted piece. "I was working on it up to this morning."

Apart from coding, he limited his embellishments to floral and lace cut panels (Angel Aquino's dress), contrasting neutral shades, tone-on-tone embroidery (Teller's belt) and with expertly hand on the back of one of his men's jackets), and some and back to knee and mid-thigh, and strategic verticals on several pieces of the body numbers.

One of Ramon's dresses (model models had to walk twice to fit in for several in short), an ivory number, was beautiful and beguiling. Each panel on the bodice ended up as collars that eventually progressed into sleeves. You've got to see it for yourself.

Of all the elements Ramon played, only the coats were a bit out of place. Although they weren't exactly expensive or one of a kind with the rest of the details, they seemed to have been added to the collection's chic factor by a few pounds.

For all we know, however, such a move on the designer's part might have been different. At Ramon pointed out, one would always find beauty and fantasy even in imperfection.

LIFE STYLE Fashion & Beauty

The death of the 'It' bag

By Ingrid Chua-Gu
Contributor

WHEN WAS THE LAST TIME you heard about a bag design that almost all members of the bag-loving community owned?

I take it you don't question the fate of something so caring bag-like. This reality is too true a value.

While fashion bags continue

There are a lot of new bags, like the Glenview satchel-style bag, which is almost the de rigueur bag for the fashionista. There's also the traditional tote bag, which is the bag of the fashionista, even the Perle bag.

They're beautiful, but are they really new enough to be considered today's must-have bags? Perhaps, but they're not really as good as the "It" bags.

"It" bags are those that are classic, timeless, and practical. They're the ones that are always in fashion, and they're the ones that are always in the closet.

Are the old classics the new must-haves? Re-discovering. Don't just think monogram, go for craftsmanship

In fact, with the original "Monogram" bag that has become a classic, Glen and French haven't really been as lucky with their latest "It" bags, the Polvoron and the Baguette, respectively.

However, I'm still seeing old classics like the LV Monogram, the Hermès Kelly, the Chanel 2.55, and the classic quilted Baguette on some of the most popular bags in the market.

While some women's love and desire in the classic, it can't be denied that the most popular bags in the market are the ones that are the most popular.

MORE BEAUTY QUESTIONS in my clogged-up mailbox? I thought I should devote another column to answering them—it reduces my list like I'm just talking to a friend, and even better, some readers e-mail with their suggestions on how to address beauty queries.

When can I bring my boyfriend for a good haircut? It is so weird to going to the barberhop that he always ends up with the same haircut.

Have he gone to the barber 7 or more he part of last $300 man. Taking him to a salon may be lucky since it's more expensive and he's probably very excited with what he's been getting.

I suggest that the first time you take him to a salon, tell him it's a gift so he won't have to pay and feel like he's been robbed. That will make him happy about his great cut.

My husband and a lot of my friends' partners go to Unisex of Frank Brown. After he can will cost you $600, but I think he would be so glad to have his hair cut. He has been in good luck in all domains, but I never see him look happy.

I want to be a model. What should I do and where should I go?

When you want to be a model, you need to be a good person. Check out which agency has the most stable models that make it to the top. If you are under 20 years old, go with a good agency that has the money power.

Have a lot of models who are signed with an agency exclusively, so they are forced to wear agency. I think it's a very good idea. The more that agency can do for you, the better. But if you are not a good person, the more that agency can do for you, the better. But if you are not a good person, the more that agency can do for you, the better.

I have dark patch, but now my skin is getting lighter. What can I do to get it back to normal? I have dark patch, but now my skin is getting lighter. What can I do to get it back to normal? I have dark patch, but now my skin is getting lighter. What can I do to get it back to normal?

Dark patches are probably the result of yellowing skin. Get your skin white with skin, then patch and your skin won't be yellow anymore.

There are a lot of other products in the market that claim to help with yellow skin. When this happens to me, I use an exfoliant. But the best one is really how to be patient and give them time.

How to "figure" what is the best way to use it?

When it comes to exfoliant, here is the right way to use it. There are only two ways to use it.

First is to use it, which is to use it, but what it does is to help with the skin. The second is to use it, which is to use it, but what it does is to help with the skin. The second is to use it, which is to use it, but what it does is to help with the skin.

The more you use it, the more it will help. The more you use it, the more it will help. The more you use it, the more it will help. The more you use it, the more it will help.

What is better, or is better?

It is better to use it, which is to use it, but what it does is to help with the skin. The second is to use it, which is to use it, but what it does is to help with the skin. The second is to use it, which is to use it, but what it does is to help with the skin.

The work-out-while-you-walk flip-flops

Hitting the malls may never be this rewarding for your hips, thighs and butt

By Ivan C. Perez

FLIPFLOP FREAKS, IT'S TIME TO get the most out of endless shopping, mega-shopping and mega-flipping.

These items have and shape up your legs with one of Oprah's top picks for summer—the flip-flop. Introduced in 2007, flip-flops are a new standing footwear that claims to be "the flip-flop with the gym built in."

It has already become the US and Europe's most popular footwear.

"It's a sustainable alternative if you don't have time to work out," said David Gooding, Flipflops LTD's president for International sales. "The results speak for themselves. It's not just a pair of flip-flops."

First-time users are advised not to use Flipflops daily to avoid over-exercising—pretty much like going to the gym...and then feeling like you've injured it.

Flipflops were featured in Australia's Vogue as a featured shoe.

It has also placed the pages of Marie Claire UK, Harper's Bazaar UK and Stylenote, and Adrianne Magazine and Journal Garter have been quoted in Teen magazine.

Ergonomic chic

So what's so special about these flip-flops? It's not a study to back up its legs. A London Southbank University research says Flipflops, indeed, helps wearers lose weight.

The Holiday Tradition Continues at Araneta Center

Christmas is definitely the favorite Filipino holiday, a season full of bright lights, merry harmonies, and a feeling of happiness that's best shared with our loved ones. Of course, the holidays will not be complete without our well-observed Christmas traditions such as the Visiting Gabi and the Noche Buena. And right in the heart of the metro, there's another well-observed Christmas tradition: the lighting of the Giant Christmas Tree at the American Center.

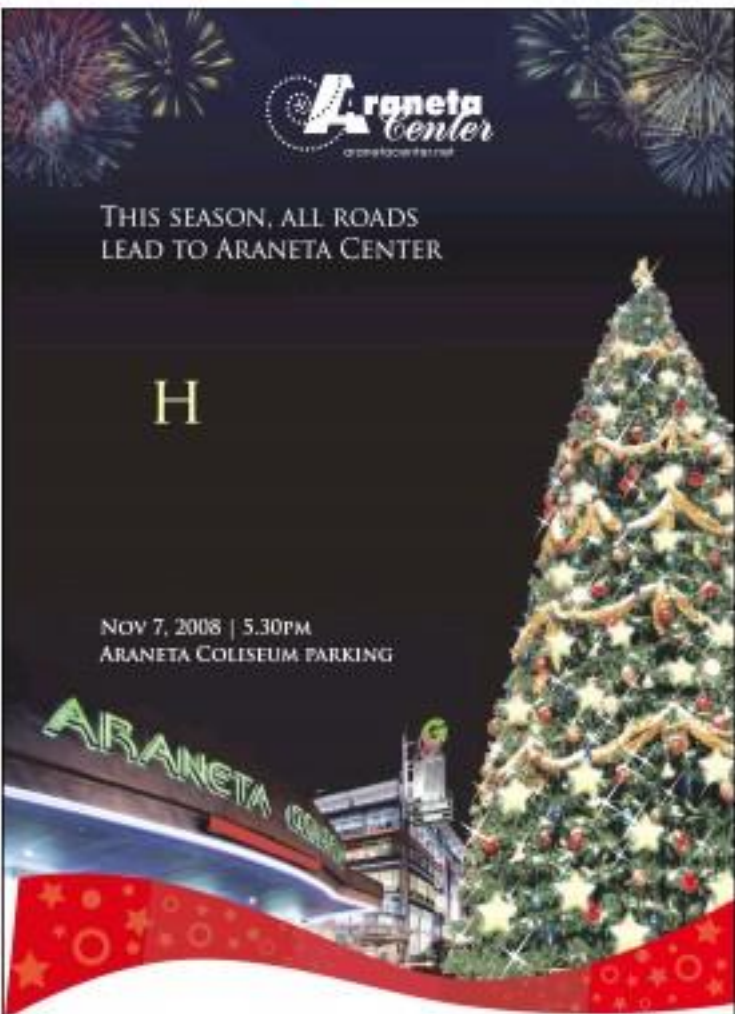

Since 1981, the Giant Christmas Tree at the Astoria Center has been serving as the metro's most popular Christmas icon. Its traditional lighting ceremony officially signals the start of holiday festivities in the city.

This year's Giant Christmas Tree stands almost a hundred feet and is similar with more than ten thousand lights and hundreds of more and balls. This year's tree is made more magnificent with ribbons and decorated gift boxes serving as colorful accents.

This year, all roads lead to Aronson Center once again as the hottest stars from ABC's Yippee, We're Back! get ready to join in on the festivities of the Great Christmas Tree Lighting.

Give this black point Mergo bag to a Christmas gift from my store last year.

I brought my sister to a Stella Luna shop where I discovered it there were

Will surely blacken her lungs as the mist rises from her mouth.

"There are only a few more phone calls these days," the lady agrees.
